

Kent Academic Repository

Panesar, Lucy (2022) Bridges and Borders. In: VOICE Conference, University for the Creative Arts, 29 June 2022, Online. (Unpublished)

Downloaded from

<https://kar.kent.ac.uk/96080/> The University of Kent's Academic Repository KAR

The version of record is available from

This document version

Author's Accepted Manuscript

DOI for this version

Licence for this version

UNSPECIFIED

Additional information

Versions of research works

Versions of Record

If this version is the version of record, it is the same as the published version available on the publisher's web site. Cite as the published version.

Author Accepted Manuscripts

If this document is identified as the Author Accepted Manuscript it is the version after peer review but before type setting, copy editing or publisher branding. Cite as Surname, Initial. (Year) 'Title of article'. To be published in Title of Journal, Volume and issue numbers [peer-reviewed accepted version]. Available at: DOI or URL (Accessed: date).

Enquiries

If you have questions about this document contact ResearchSupport@kent.ac.uk. Please include the URL of the record in KAR. If you believe that your, or a third party's rights have been compromised through this document please see our Take Down policy (available from <https://www.kent.ac.uk/guides/kar-the-kent-academic-repository#policies>).

Bridges and Borders

Lucy Panesar + LCC Changemakers | UCA VOICE Conference | 29 June 2022

UCA FE
Contextual Studies
Coordinator

LCF Academic Support
Lecturer

UAL
Educational Developer (Diversity and Inclusion)

LCC
Progression and Attainment
Project Manager

UoK Lecturer in Higher Education

Trigger warning

+

=

PINK

BROWN

GREEN

a.

b.

c.

d.

e.

f.

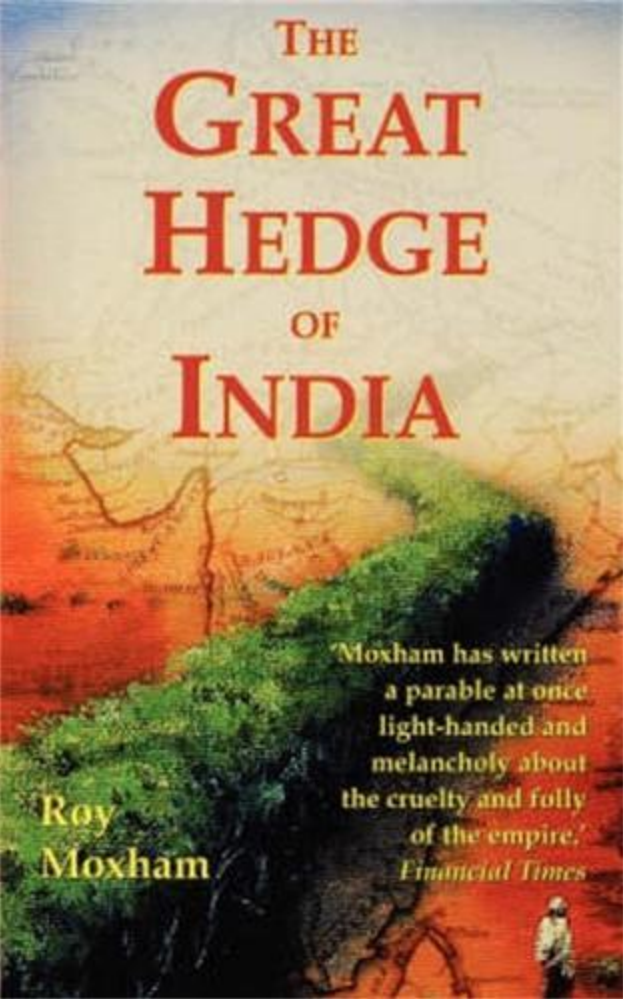

VIVIDMAPS.COM

Common Salt by Sheila Ghelani and Sue Palmer

<https://www.sheilaghelani.co.uk/commonsalt>

THE GREAT HEDGE
OF INDIA

Roy
Moxham

'Moxham has written a parable at once light-handed and melancholy about the cruelty and folly of the empire.'
Financial Times

Source: Waterstones

Source: Wikipedia

Coloniser

The diagram consists of two regular hexagons positioned side-by-side, overlapping at their right and left edges respectively. The left hexagon is outlined in purple and contains the text 'Coloniser'. The right hexagon is outlined in yellow and contains the text 'Colonised'. The background is solid black.

Colonised

*Decolonising / Decolonisation

Statement on the Decolonising Wikipedia Network homepage (2020):

Decolonisation is not a metaphor or synonym for diversity and inclusion work (Tuck and Yang, 2012); it is about equity, justice and reparation for those whose lives and life chances have been and continue to be negatively affected by colonisation. Under British colonial rule, entire communities and nations suffered the loss or oppression of traditional knowledge and ways of knowing, and other forms of epistemicide. The legacy of this continues to influence knowledge production and dissemination to this day.

ual:

Decolonising reading lists

Step 3: Find the marginalised voice

Mainstream publishing tends to favour those established within the academy, and we know that some people are underrepresented, particularly staff of colour (El Kadi, 2019). This is slowly changing and it is important to stay abreast of existing and new scholarship by academics of colour.

Shades of Noir's 'Terms of Reference' journals include extended key terms, resources and reading lists to support the democratisation of curricula which centres marginal communities <http://shadesofnoir.org.uk/terms-of-reference-journals/>, and can be incorporated into reading lists. Many students also prefer accessing information from a variety of media sources, which are often more inclusive of emerging voices. The library has the following resources to support you in diversifying the format of materials on your reading lists:

- Journals and magazines: the library has many international titles
- Films: DVDs are available in the library, and via Kanopy for streaming media (<https://arts.kanopy.com/>)
- TV and Radio Content: via Box of Broadcasts (<https://learningonscreen.ac.uk/ondemand/>)
- Blogs, web sites, open resources
- YouTube/TedTalks

University of the Arts London (2020)
Decolonising Reading Lists

Key stats about Wikipedia

According to Graham, DeSabbata and Zook (2015, p.97) :

- In the US and UK 85% / 78% content is created locally, by their own citizens
- In Africa less than 5% of their content is created locally, by their own citizens

Graham, DeSabbata and Zook (2015) "Towards a study of information geographies:\(im\)mutable aug-mentations and a mapping of the geographies of information." Geography and Environment 2, no. 1: 88–105, 90.

Decolonising Wikipedia x London's Colonial Her/Histories

UAL x Wikimedia UK Knowledge Exchange project for 2021-22, aiming to:

- Develop an understanding of the role that Wikipedia can play in decolonisation*
- Expand the Decolonising* Wikipedia Network across UAL
- Prompt and support people to edit and create Wikipedia pages related to London's colonial her/histories and legacies

Festival of Empire

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The 1911 Festival of Empire was the biggest single event held at The Crystal Palace in London since its opening. It opened on 12 May and was one of the events to celebrate the coronation of King George V. The original intention had been that Edward VII would open it in 1910, however, this was postponed after his death shortly before the planned opening day. The Festival contained a display of landscapes and exhibits from the British Empire, mainly the dominion countries, to encourage emigration to those nations; and it contained a large scale pageant dramatising British history.^[1] It was described at the time as 'a social gathering of the British family' encouraging the 'firmer welding of those invisible bonds which hold together the greatest empire the world has ever known'.^[2] It has since been described as the 'ultimate imperialist propaganda showcase'.^[3]

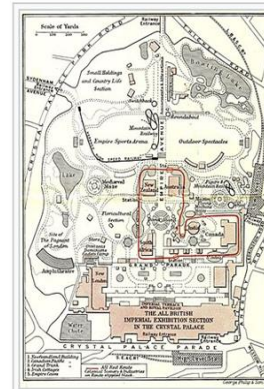

Contents [hide]

- Context
- Festival Design
 - Buildings
 - Exhibits on The All-Red Route Train Ride
- Pageant of London
- The King's Day with the Children
- Inter-Empire Championships
 - Athletics
- The End of the Festival
- Critical appraisal of the Festival
- See also
- References
- External links

Coordinates: 51°

View from the Canadian replica Parliament Building of the Festival at the Crystal Palace

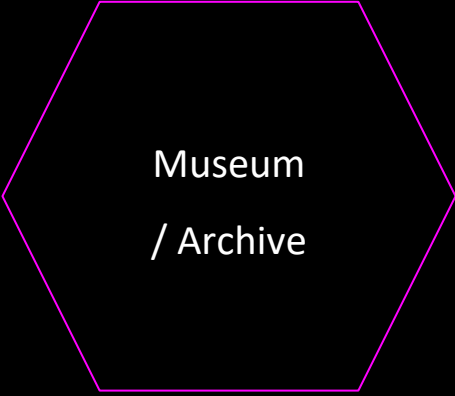

Map of the event

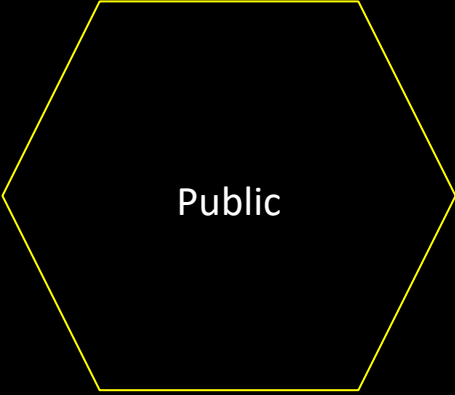

Screenshot of 1911 Festival of Empire Wikipedia page co-edited by me and Lydia Wilks in Spring 2021

Screenshot of initial Google Sketchup work by Crystal Palace Museum volunteer David Cardew, Spring 2021

Museum
/ Archive

Public

Museum
/ Archive

Community Groups

Public

Places Never Seen

hosted by the South London
Gallery in partnership with UAL and Wikimedia UK and enabled by Heritage Lottery Funding

Made possible with

Heritage Fund

Department for Digital, Culture,
Media & Sport

<https://framevr.io/places-never-seen>

To 'facilitate the Good Degree Student'... be an interlocutor' (Singh, 2012)

'Those students who are categorised as BME and achieve good degrees suggested that some of this success was due to the intervention of an interlocutor who helped them negotiate some of the new concepts that they encountered.'
(Cousin and Cuerton, 2012, p.17)

Singh, G. (2012) Student Retention and Achievement in Higher Education: Success, Inequality and Disadvantage.
De Montfort University, Leicester.

Cousin, G. & Cuerton, D. (2012) 'Disparities in Student Attainment (DISA)'. Higher Education Academy.

“Everyone needs a Sheree (Student Success Project Manager in the Kent Law School), so why doesn’t everyone know and get support from people like Sheree.” (Black male law student cited by the Decolonise Kent Collective in Thomas and Jivraj, 2020, p.26)

Thomas, D.S.P. and Jivraj, S. (eds) (2020) 'Towards Decolonising the University: A Kaleidoscope for Empowered Action'. Counterpress.

Staff
co-creator

Student co-
creator

A case study of liberating reading lists through collaboration between students, academic staff and librarians, reviewing and reimagining reading lists to represent multiple narratives. The article explores the challenges of auditing, identifying more diverse resources, and the complex relationships between identity and knowledge production.

Crilly, J., Panesar, L. and Suka-Bill, Z. (2020) 'Co-constructing a Liberated / Decolonised Arts Curriculum.' Journal of University Teaching and Learning Practice.

EMPHASIS ON THE STUDENT VOICE

STUDENTS AS EVALUATORS OF THEIR HE EXPERIENCE (THE STUDENT VOICE)

Students offer feedback, views and opinions and are listened to on an institutional basis, in order to build an evidence-base as a basis for enhancement and change. Decisions for action tend to be taken at subject and/or institutional level.

STUDENTS AS PARTICIPANTS IN DECISION-MAKING PROCESSES

Students engage in institutional decision-making, in order to influence enhancement and change. Decisions for action tend to be taken collaboratively with staff and students.

EMPHASIS ON THE UNIVERSITY AS DRIVER

Integrating students into educational change

EMPHASIS ON THE STUDENT AS DRIVER

STUDENTS AS PARTNERS, CO-CREATORS AND EXPERTS

Students are collaborative partners in curriculum provision and professional development, in order to enhance staff and student learning. Decisions for action tend to be taken at subject and/or institutional level.

STUDENTS AS AGENTS FOR CHANGE

Students are collaborative partners in pedagogic knowledge acquisition and professional development, with the purpose of bringing about change. Decisions for action tend to be promoted by students and engaged with at subject and/or institutional level.

EMPHASIS ON STUDENT ENGAGEMENT

A model for students as change agents (Dunne & Zandstra 2011, cited in Healey, Flint & Harrington 2014, p.46

Healey, M, Flint, A, and Harrington, K. (2014) 'Engagement through partnership: students as partners in learning and teaching in higher education'. Higher Education Academy.

Anti-Racist Curriculum (ARC) project (2021-22)

Involving Students in developing an Anti-Racist Curriculum

Advance HE

What is co-creation?

Co-creation is a process in which the end user is involved from beginning to end – in the design, development and delivery of the service. In tertiary education this means students are active participants in the learning and teaching process, from the development of the curriculum to the evaluation of teaching.

Why co-create?

- Co-creation is a win-win situation for everyone involved.
- Students gain a much greater understanding of the work “behind” the lecture which can lead to them engaging more in the classroom.
- Students know best about what it is to be a student and be on the “receiving end” of education, and can feed in perspectives unique to their experiences.
- Lecturers can develop curricula and materials that not only utilise their knowledge and expertise, but that are also shaped to the needs of the student, creating improved learning AND teaching experiences.
- It contributes to building a positive relationship between the lecturer and the student.

Models of co-creation

Bovill (2019) lists a range of models in existence such as students co-researching university-wide projects, students participating in course design review committees, students as consultants providing feedback on teaching observations and students co-designing courses and curricula, among many other examples¹.

Bovill (2018) also highlights the difference between co-creation of the curriculum (that happens before the course) and co-creation in the curriculum (that happens during the course)².

There are many ways to consider co-creation at various stages of the course or programme. However, the core principle of co-creation is to involve students as active participants in the design, development, delivery and assessment of their learning and teaching, and a key feature of the process is shared decision-making.

¹ Bovill, C. Co-creation in learning and teaching: the case for a whole-class approach in higher education. Higher Education 79, 1023–1037 (2020).

² Bovill, C. & Woolmer, C. (2019) How conceptualisations of curriculum in higher education influence student-staff co-creation in and of the curriculum. Higher Education 78 (3) 407-422.

LCC Changemakers

Illustration by Nia Hefe Filiogianni

Cassia Clarke

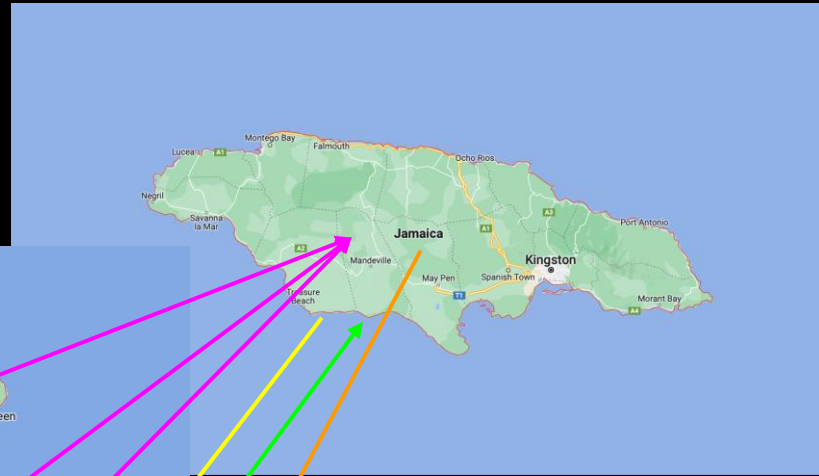

The bridges made and the borders crossed.

LCC Changemaker, racial justice and attainability.

Archive & educational toolkit.

1. The expedition of the British Commonwealth to the Caribbean.
2. The implementation of the slave trade in the Caribbean to the UK.
3. The migration of Caribbeans to their "motherland" (Windrush included).
4. The migration of Caribbeans in the aftermath of WW2 for employment in the UK.

Emilio Gotterbarm

Working as a Changemaker

- Working with MIDA. MA Animation online and BA Games Arts.
- Focusing on the Reading List
- Indirect cultural exchange
- Future Plans

The majority of our planning and discussions were done on teams.

1.

2.

3.

4.

1. Nineteenth Century artistic rendering of the Library of Alexandria by O. Von Corven

2. Wallace and Gromit by Nick Park

3. The Moomins by Tove Jansson

4. Doraemon by Fujiko Fujio

Thanks for having us!

Any comments or questions?