LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS

Eiki Berg is Professor of International Relations at the University of Tartu. He completed his PhD at the Institute of Geography, University of Tartu in 1999. Since 1996, he has worked at the Institute of Government and Politics, generally focusing on critical geopolitics and the studies of borders and border regions in particular. Among his recent research activities, studies about territoriality and sovereignty issues in contested states have gained more prominence. He has published widely in leading peer-reviewed journals and with leading publishing houses on bordering practices, identity politics and power-sharing in post-conflict settings. During the years 2003–2004 he served as an MP in the Estonian Parliament and observer to the European Parliament, EPP-ED faction, Committee on Foreign Affairs, Human Rights, Common Security and Defence Policy.

Ondřej Čísař is Associate Professor at the Faculty of Social Studies, Masaryk University, Czech Republic. He also works as the editor-in-chief of the Czech edition of Czech Sociological Review. His research interests include social movements, political mobilisation and protest, and political theory. Recently, he has published papers on political mobilisation in Communist and Post-Communist Studies (2010) and Environmental Politics (2010).

Nathaniel Copey is Senior Lecturer at Aston University and Co-Director of the Aston Centre for Europe. His research interests centre on the relations between the European Union and its eastern neighbours as well as the politics and governance of Poland and Ukraine. Together with Alan Mayhew and Christophe Hillion, he is a co-director of the Wider Europe Programme, a collaborative, policy-oriented network of practitioners and academics with an interest in the European Neighbourhood Policy. He graduated from Oxford University in 2000 and also holds a Master's degree from the College of Europe and a DPhil from the University of Sussex. On graduating from the College of Europe, he worked as a presenter at Telewizja Polska (Polish Television) in Warsaw and subsequently in London at the international think tank, the Policy Network. He has taught at the College of Europe and MGIMO in Moscow. He is a Visiting Academic Fellow at the Sussex European Institute and University College London's School of Slavonic and East European Studies. From 2007 to 2009, he was CEELBAS Research Fellow at the former European Research Institute of the University of Birmingham. Together with Tim Haughton he is the Editor of the Journal of Common Market Studies Annual Review (JCMS AR).

Martin Dangerfield is Professor of European Integration and also Jean Monnet Chair in the European Integration of Central and Eastern Europe at the University of Wolverhampton. His current research interests include EU enlargement, the European Neighbourhood Policy, the EU Macro-Regional Strategy, and subregional cooperation in Central and Eastern Europe with particular emphasis on CEFTA and the Visegrad Group. Recently, he has published articles on the Visegrad Group in Europe-Asia Studies (2009) and East European Politics and Society (2008).

Gerard Delanty is Professor of Sociology and Social & Political Thought at the University of Sussex. In 2006 he was a visiting professor at Deakin University Melbourne, and he has previously held visiting professorships in Kyoto and Toronto. He has written on various issues in social and political theory, European identity and the cultural and historical sociology of modernity. He is the author of eleven books including Inventing Europe: Idea, Identity, Reality (1995), Social Theory in a Changing World (1999), Modernity and Postmodernity: Knowledge, Power, the Self (2000), Citizenship in the Global Age (2000), Community (Routledge 2003 / new edition 2010) and (with C. Rumford) Rethinking Europe: Social Theory and the Implications of Europeanization (2005) and The Cosmopolitan Imagination (2009). He has edited many volumes, including the Handbook of Contemporary European Social Theory (2005), Europe and Asia Beyond East and West (2006) (with Krishan Kumar), The Handbook of Nations and Nationalism (2006) and (with Stephen P. Turner) The International Handbook of Contemporary Social and Political Theory (2011). His recent articles have appeared in the British Journal of Sociology (2006) and International Sociology (2008).

Branislav Dolný is Research Assistant at the Department of Political Science, Comenius University in Bratislava, Slovakia. His research interests focus on theory of democracy and democratisation.

Grzegorz Ekiert is Professor of Government and Senior Scholar at the Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies. His teaching and research interests focus on comparative politics, regime change and democratisation, civil society and social movements, and East European politics and societies. He is the author of The State Against Society: Political Crises and Their Aftermath in East Central Europe (1996), Rebellious Civil Society: Popular Protest and Democratic Consolidation in Poland (with Jan Kubik, 1999); Capitalism and Democracy in Central and Eastern Europe: Assessing the Legacy of Communist Rule (co-edited with Stephen Hanson, 2003), and the editor of special issues of East European Politics and Societies on “The EU Eastward Enlargement” (with Jan Zielonka, 2003) and on “Democracy in the Post-Communist World” (2007). His papers have appeared in numerous social science journals and edited volumes. His current projects explore civil society development in new democracies in Central Europe and East Asia and patterns of transformations in the post-communist world. He was an Acting Director of Harvard’s Center for European Studies in 2010. He is also a Senior Faculty Associate at the Davis Center for Russian and Eurasian Studies, and Member of the Club of Madrid Advisory Committee.

In the years after the breakthrough events of 1989, the concept of Central and Eastern Europe (CEE) came to be widely used as a synonym for the group of ten countries from the former Eastern Bloc aspiring to EU membership. This book is an attempt to demonstrate and assess the changes resulting from the EU enlargements of 2004 and 2007 and European integration processes, identifying both the similarities and the differences in the countries of the region.

This volume is addressed to those interested in Central and Eastern Europe. It has two main aims: first, to present the recent alterations in the region resulting from the processes of European integration; second, to offer an account of the process of Europeanisation in the countries occurring after accession to the EU that goes beyond just conditionality mechanisms. The collection also attempts to reflect on and contribute to the discussion on how the changes taking place in CEE influence theorisation on Europeanisation – a concept initially constructed in order to tackle the changes taking place in response to the processes of European integration in the old member states.

The book is divided into four parts, each concentrating on an area where the changes seem to be most profound and most interesting from the point of view of theorising on the impact of the European integration processes: democratic consolidation in the region, collective identity construction, functioning of civil society and studies on foreign policy and international relations.

Magdalena Góra is Assistant Professor at the Institute of European Studies, Jagiellonian University, Kraków. Her academic interests include processes of collective identity formation in the context of EU enlargement, the European Union as an actor in international relations, contemporary Polish foreign policy, and Polish-Jewish and Polish-Israeli relations.

Katarzyna Zielińska is Assistant Professor at the Institute of Sociology and International Programmes Coordinator at the Centre for European Studies of the Jagiellonian University, Kraków. Her academic interests include gender issues in the EU as well as religion and politics in modern societies.
